OUR STORY

Create Streets is a social enterprise founded in 2013 out of frustration with the low quality of too much recent development and of irrational decision-making. We research links between urban form and wellbeing, health, sustainability, value and popularity.

In our first seven years, Create Streets has already managed to have a non-trivial impact on British planning policy and the wider debate.

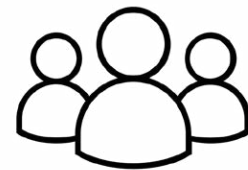

In numbers

10 campaigns

*20 critical friend
reviews*

25 community partnerships

Create Streets exists to develop high density, beautiful, street-based economically and socially successful developments with strong local support and which residents will love for generations.

Create Streets has had a very significant role on the British planning policy framework. Over the next fifteen years we will increase this further in the UK and beyond so that design better supports happier and more sustainable places

OUR MISSION

WHAT WE DO

*We can help
you make better places.*

Research

We have published over 30 books, journal articles and essays on our research into planning and how place-based design improves human outcomes.

Neighbourhood planning

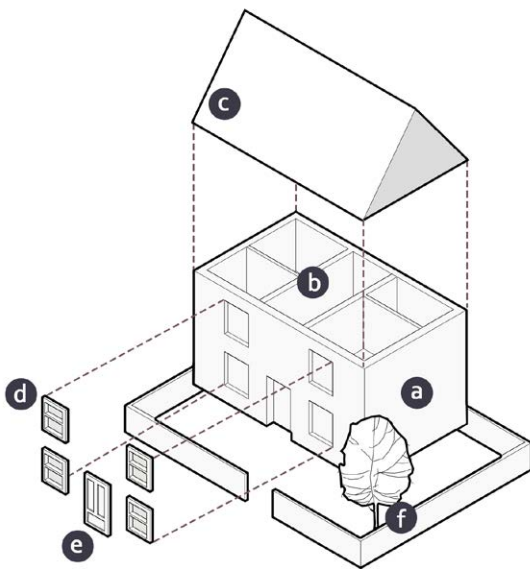

We support community groups by helping to shape their planning policies in order to secure the future of their neighbourhoods.

"When I see Create Street's work, I see hope."

- Co-design participant

"An argument that appears to be winning."

- Rt Hon Robert Jenrick, Secretary of State for Housing, Communities and Local Government

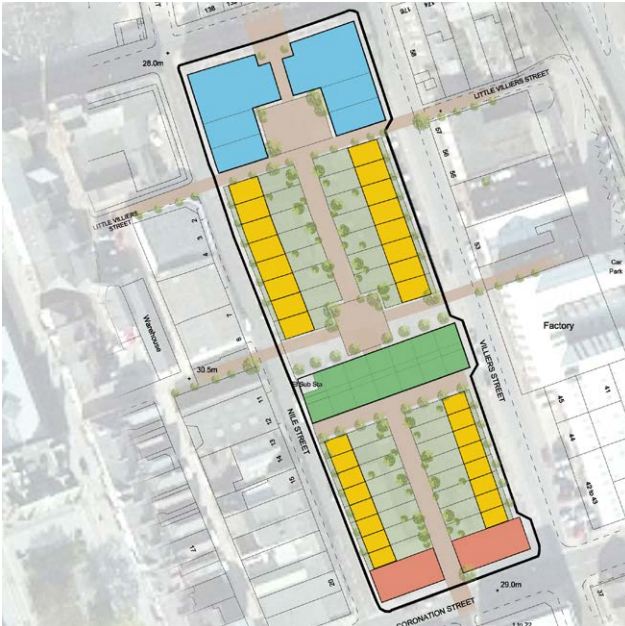

Design guides

We prepare design codes and guides, run workshops and support local authorities, landowners and neighbourhood groups to create better places.

Community co-design

We work with local community groups who want to improve the places they live in, by organising co-design events with architects and planners.

Urban design

We help local authorities, landowners and neighbourhood groups to create more beautiful places, based on our research into urban design and wellbeing.

Architecture

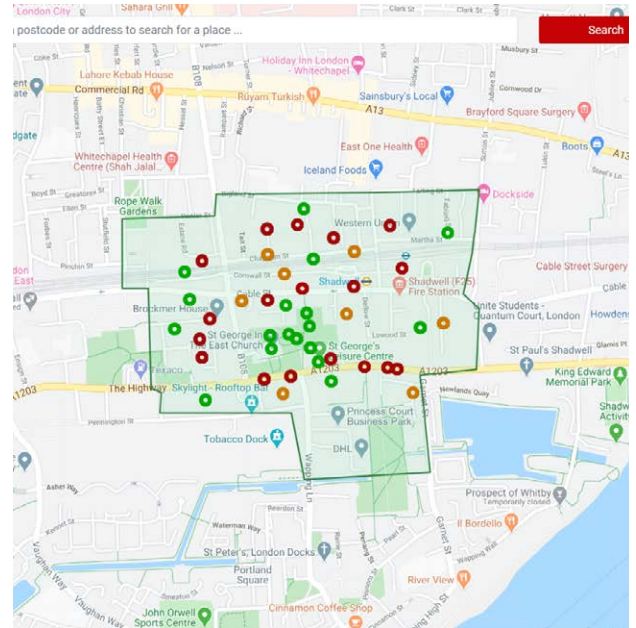

We design beautiful, high quality buildings which respect the local context and create a sense of place that will last for generations to come.

Strategic advice

We provide local authorities, developers and community groups with strategic advice to support their work in masterplanning and regeneration.

Create Communities

We've recently launched our 'create communities' tool to promote digital engagement during the COVID-19 pandemic.
